ASPECTS THAT WILL MAKE OUR SCHOOL SUCCESSFUL

Leadership: At I.S. 303, we will empower the students to become leaders in the 21st century. The “Leader in Me” is based on the “7 Habits of Highly Effective People”. By internalizing the 7 habits, we will increase students’ self-confidence, initiative, communication skills, and ability to work as a team member. Students will learn how to be active problem solvers and set and achieve goals efficiently. Within the school community there will be a common language and all stakeholders will become partners in this process, including the parents. Students will learn how to unleash their own unique talents to better the school community and contribute to the positive school culture within the school. The students will also be better prepared for college and career, as students will apply for jobs within the school through an application process, take part in service-learning projects and engage in rigorous curriculum that infuses the 7 habits.

Parent and Community Engagement: We will fully engage our parents and community partners in order to foster a collaborative and inclusive community. We will ensure that parents become active partners in their child’s education in order for each child to perform to their fullest potential. We will encourage parent voice and ensure that they always feel welcome in the school community. Parents will have multiple opportunities to visit classrooms, attend professional development, read to the students, take part in trips and service-learning projects and sit on various teams within the school. Additionally, community partnerships with organizations such as, The Parks Department, The Department of Sanitation, Arts organizations and Franklin Covey will also enhance the learning experiences for our students. The community organizations will be frequently invited into the school as there will be ample room for demonstrations, presentations and hands-on learning projects
